The hotel website design remains the "Eyecatcher". Because it's the first impression that counts. In "mobile friendly" is about, that content is not only consumed on large computers, but also, and in most cases, even to a large extent on mobile devices such as smartphones and tablets, which have a wide variety of screen sizes.

It's therefore essential to offer the content of hotel websites in a way, which are readable and accessible both on computers, as well as smartphones. A responsive design ensures that the website automatically adapts to the resolutions of different devices and positions the content as well as the fields correctly.
